View of Okunikko (From Mount Hangetsu Observation deck)

Ryuzu Falls

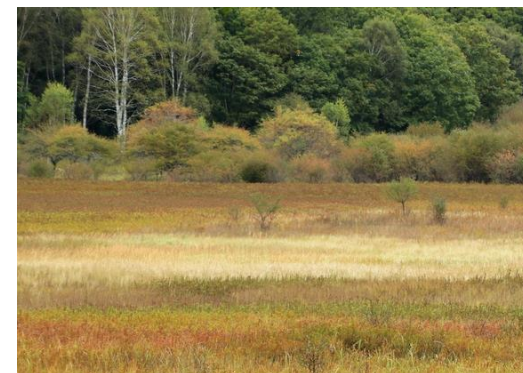

● Nature

The autumn grass of Odashirogahara Marshland is finally starting to turn red, and the colors can be seen at Ryuzu Falls and Lake Yunoko. Some azaleas are turning red near Mount Hangetsu and on the north shore of Lake Chuzenji. The minimum temperature is forecast to be below 10 degrees every day in the second week of October, so we can expect the leaves to change color.

● Information

Renovation of Mount Hangetsu Observation Deck has been completed. From October 1st to November 10th, seasonal bus routes to the Hangetsu area will operate. It takes about 30 minutes from the last bus stop to reach the observation deck.

The Sanno Forest Road has also been reopened, so you can enjoy a drive to see the autumn leaves, but it will be closed again from November 1st.
