TOKYO, February 26 — Ahead of the 2026 cherry blossom season, Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo is relaunching guided garden tours as part of its expanded cultural programming. The initiative follows the hotel's receipt of the Japan Institute of Design Promotion's Good Design Award in 2025 for its "Garden Culture Revitalization and Transmission Project."

Originally created in 1878 by statesman Aritomo Yamagata, the garden remains central to the hotel's identity. Among its most significant features is the three-story pagoda, a National Tangible Cultural Property, which marked 100 years since its relocation to the property in 2025. The anniversary is being commemorated with celebrations through November 2026.

Another highlight of the tour is the "Tokyo Sea of Clouds," an installation that recreates a natural phenomenon typically seen in Japan's mountainous regions. The guides lead visitors to optimal viewing points of the installation while also introducing traditional shrine worship practices at Shiratama Inari Shrine and seasonal flowers at their peak. In spring, approximately 100 cherry trees bloom across the grounds.

“Many guests are surprised by the depth of history within the garden,” said General Manager Tomohiko Chihiro. “We hope the tours allow our international visitors to learn about details that might otherwise go unnoticed.”

In addition to the garden tours, the hotel will introduce a matcha experience at its executive lounge, Le Ciel, accessible exclusively to suite guests. Participants may prepare matcha themselves or observe its preparation in a lounge setting overlooking the garden. The program is designed as an approachable introduction to enjoying matcha.

For guests seeking a formal tea ceremony, Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo also offers a separate tea ceremony experience at its historic teahouse, Zangetsu.
